

TRANSITORINESS OF EARTHLY THINGS

1. ALL NATURE ECHOES THE MESSAGE OF THE GRASS:

1. The winter snow falls lightly and lies in its white purity. Soon soils, browns, passes.
2. Responsive to the low, warm sunshine, the spring flowers burst forth for a time in all their beauty. Soon wither and pass away.
3. The summer blossoms multiply and seem strong with their deep rich colouring. But soon they wither, droop, pass away.
4. The autumn fruits cluster on the tree branches, grow big, and win their soft rich bloom of ripeness, but they are plucked in due season and pass away.
5. Down every channel of the hill sides are borne the crumbings of the eternal hills as we call them, yet they are passing away.

And he said, What shall I cry? All
